PROFESSIONAL SUMMARY

I am a journalism and history student at the University of Oklahoma with hands-on experience in reporting, editorial writing and creative design. Skilled in storytelling, research and media production with a strong background covering politics, producing editorial content and creating engaging digital media. I thrive in fast-paced environments, excel at collaborating across teams and consistently maintain journalistic integrity while delivering accurate, compelling content. Together, my background in politics, production, design and performance gives me a uniquely flexible perspective- one that lets me move easily between the newsroom, the studio and the creative table. With a foot in politics, a flair for design, and a lifelong love of performance and production, I bring a wide-ranging toolkit that lets me connect stories across mediums and audiences.
